In toils, or quiet rest. "Speak often" of that love so high, With earth's heroic deeds: Though for a friend earth's sons may die,

Be Christ the subject of each song,

Here suffering love exceeds-He pours His soul out unto death, For those who scorned His name; Adoring, spend each fleeting breath, That mercy to proclaim.

Speak of it, when ye chance to meet, Amid life's busy din, Or wild confusion of the street-Thou mayst a spirit win,

On Calvary's summit to behold How truth and mercy met; Thus shall thy words, like fruits of gold, In silver flowers be set.

" Speak often," God a record keeps Of all thy suffering fears, Though time's dark shade o'er memory cree;

Independence of Action.

Independence of thought and action is an excellent trait of mental and Christian character. If grounded on a fixed purpose of soul, and regulated by a clear perception of truth and duty, it commands respect and carries with it an influence that leaves a lasting impression wherever it falls.

DIED, in Groton, Ct. Sept. 19th, NANCY E., wife of Dea. R. A. Avery, aged 42 years. For many years sister Avery indulged a trembling hope that God, for Christ's sake, had forgiven her sins.— Yet she did not obtain strength to publicly put on Christ until within a few years; when I had the privilege of baptizing her into the 2d Bap. Church in Groton ; of which I was then Pastor, where her husband had been for several years an active Dea-con, and in which she was an ornament to her pro-fession. She was dismissed with her husband and several others to constitute the Baptist Church on Groton Bank nearly two years since, where she re-mained till her death; and was the first of that litrecovered; when one day she was suddenly taken more ill, and died the same evening. After she ceased to speak, a most heavenly smile suddenly is full. The $100,000 expected from Newburgh in rested upon her countenance indicative of her behalf of the branch to that place has been filled up peace of mind; and continued to play upon it till she sweetly fell asleep in Jesus. The next Lord's day an appropriate sermon was preached at her place she was dead, &c. Mr. Morgan, the jailer testified that there was a wildness about his eyes, and that his conduct had been such as to induce him to quaintance) all her neighbors, friends and relative have met with a great loss. Her husband has lost a faithful wife-an help meet indeed. Her large family of ten children, (one of whom is now at sea,) a most affectionate and unwearied mother,-the Church a very worthy member-and many a Zion's traveler has lost a mother in Israel who has been the hostess in a pilgrim's tavern that has been left by her devoted husband, and his father and mother before him, for many years, in which she took great delight in entertaining both friends and stran-

The Lost Church.

BY JAMES MONTGOMERY. Here stood a Church-a house of God, An earthly temple, built with stones; Its courts our fathers' footsteps trod, Its graves received our fathers' bones The hymn of praise, the voice of prayer, The gospel trumpet sounded there; And ransomed spirits, in Heaven's bliss, May round the throne remember this.

But earthly temples must decay-By slow or swift destruction fall; And time or tide will wear away The stateliest tower, the strongest wall Here both conspired, in one dark hour, To sap the wall-bring down the tower; To storm the sanctuary, and sweep Its very ruins to the deep!

The river rushed upon the sea; The sea the rage repelled; All the winds at once set free, War with the warring waters held On fire with foam the surges seem, While vehemently beat the stream, And rocked the fabric to and fro, As if an earthquake heaved below.

Till, as in dead of night, the flash Of lightning issues from the cloud, Chased by the thunder, crash on crash, Down the deep the temple bowed; Bowed, for a moment, o'er the spot, Another moment it was not! O'er the Lost Church the billows boomed, And in its wreck its tombs entombed!

"Thus far, no farther shall ye go," The river heard that voice and fled; Spanning the firmament, Gop's bow. The sign of wrath retiring, spread; Promise of future glory gave, Of resurrection from the grave, When circling seasons had fulfilled. The term His sovereign counsels willed.

The fulness of that time behold! Nine generations, in their haste, Have passed where stood that Church of old, Yet left the ground a hallowed waste; Ye, who where once they breathed, now breathe To your posterity bequeath Of your existence here well spent, A house of prayer, as monument.

From granite rocks the pile renew-From Cambrian mines the ore he brought From ancient woods the timber hew. To body forth creative thought : And bid the second temple rise; A land and sea-mark to all eyes, Which shall outshine the first, as far As harvest-moon the morning star.

"There is a home not made with hands, Eternal in the heavens," for them Who travel singly or in bands, To seek the New Jerusalem With them may all who worship here, Age after age, in turn repair, Where that which men call death on earth Spirits may deem their birth.

Prevention Better than Cure.

That prevention is better than cure, in the ratio of at least ten to one, has been for thousands of years, universally conceded ;-nay, the sentiment has been embodied into more than one proverb. And yet how few practically believe it even at the present hour? The whole world as it were. expend their efforts in the work of cureleaving the noble work of prevention almost untouched.

Among the employments of mankind, what is more noble than agriculture or farming? And yet as a general fact, to which I acknowledge there are a few exceptions, what is the farmer doing-the world over-but attempting to cure what might be termed a diseased soil? How very easy, comparatively, to preserve a virgin soil in good condition, instead of exhausting it immediately, and then spending a life in attempts to renovate or cure it!

The lawyer, what is he doing all his life time but attempting to mend broken law, or heal divisions among his people? What does he, in short, but cure ? The judge, the legislator, the statesman-what are the labors of these men but efforts (how well or how the sad description of the past be ren- Solomon Stoddard, Northan how ill they are directed is not now the question) to cure ?

Military and Private Murder. If, indeed, there be a difference in the degree of guilt, the man who is clothed in military attire is the greater criminal of the two. Those who commit murder in private life, are generally impelled to the horrid dation of faith, and that whatever is not deed by some powerful temptation, or by some sudden uncontrollable gust of passion. > HAPPINESS does not so much consist in having much to enjoy, as in the faculty to enjoy a life. He who cannot be happy without taking great pains will always find his pains greater than his happiness. It is a beautiful thought of Addison's that one man often takes more pleasure in the contemplation of a fine estate, than another in possession. The former derives much pleasure from the estate, without being burdened with the care of possession; the latter, burdened with the care of possession, derives little pleasure from the estate. The one finds an estate in the beauties; the other finds no beauties in the estate. The possession of enjoyment is better than the enjoyment of possession.

Of all the preaching in the world, (that speaks not stark lies,) I hate that preaching which tends to make the hearers laugh, or to move their minds with tickling levity. and affect them as stage-players used to do instead of affecting them with a holy reverence of the name of God .- Baxter.

Not to read or study at all, is to tempt God: and to do nothing but study, is to forget the ministry; to study only to glory in one's knowledge, is a shameful vanity : to study in search of the means to flatter sinners, is a deplorable prevarication; but to store one's mind with the knowledge proper to the saints, by study and by prayer, and tions and practical exhortations,-this is to be a prudent, zealous and laborious minis-
